

The Sankey diagram illustrates the distribution of 100% of votes across 100 candidates in the 2017 French legislative elections. The diagram is color-coded by political party: Orange for the majority (LR, MoDem, Les Républicains), Green for the opposition (LFI, PCF, PS, EELV, etc.), and Purple for the far left (NUPES). The flow starts from the left with the total vote and branches out to individual candidates on the right. Each candidate's name is accompanied by their party flag and a numerical value representing their share of the total vote. The diagram illustrates the concentration of votes among major candidates and the distribution of votes across many smaller candidates.
